The Patchwood collection is a bolder and more modern take on traditional wood-look wall and floor tiles. Available in taupe, grey, blue and rich brown, homeowners and professionals can add the classic look of real wood with a colorful twist in three design styles that can be used together or on their own. Each tile has the grain, color variance and patterns of a natural wood floor plank.

Imported from Italy, Patchwood expands on the already-robust selection of wood-look tile at The Tile Shop. Wood look has gained recent popularity for its classic, warm appearance, easy-to-care-for properties and durability. This new collection brings something unique to the mix that will satisfy the tastes of customers that demand originality.

“Patchwood will serve to broaden The Tile Shop’s assortment of wood-look tiles so that we can offer something to every single customer that wants the timeless look of wood and easy care of porcelain tile,” said Kevin McDaniel, Vice President of Merchandising at The Tile Shop. “Available in mosaics, squares and rectangular planks, I look forward to the Patchwood collection inspiring bold décor and design.”

The Patchwood series is one of dozens of new and unique product collections being released this month and represents part of a commitment to offer the leading assortment in the industry.
